A word on the title -- I chose this edition, which is an American reprint which I couldn't help noticing strongly suggests the style of the Faber paperbacks of the 1950s and 60s, because it uses Lawrence Durrell's original title. (For some reason a lot of reprints are now entitled "Bitter Lemons of Cyprus" -- why?)

Bitter lemon is a bitter lemon flavoured soft drink. Its signature taste is a result of inherently bitter lemon pith being reinforced by the bitter alkaloid quinine. The principal difference between tonic water and bitter lemon is the lemon juice, pith, and peel. The juice adds sour, offset by additional sweetener, and the oily peel fragrance.
