Secret Prey Lucas Davenport 9

Lucas Davenport is again up against an impossible case in author John Sandford's ninth series book, "Secret Prey". Written in 1998 this Davenport adventure may be John Sandford's best yet. Exceptionally long at just over 500 pages this Davenport read for me mightily pushes the envelope in a couple areas a bit too far.

Secret Prey (Lucas Davenport, #9) by John Sandford

Once, when he was nine, he'd made soup for himself and his mother out of three carefully shot blackbirds. Only McDonald disdained the hunt. He'd shot deer in the past—he was a Minnesota male, and males of a certain class were expected to do that—but he considered the hunt a pain in the ass.

Secret Prey (Lucas Davenport, #9) by John Sandford. The company chairman lay dead in the woods, his orange hunting jacket punctured by a bullet at close range. Around him stood the four executives with whom he had been hunting, each with a reason not to be sorry about the man's death. A classic murder mystery, it would seem: the kind where the detective gathers everyone together at the end and solves the case.
